ADA attends council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY
Christine Woodall and Michelle Barrett, two women trained to help local governments and businesses in their efforts to comply to ADA regulations, attended the Bay St. Louis City Council meeting Tuesday.

The meeting, normally held in the Council chamber on the second floor of City Hall, was moved downstairs to the utility department lobby to accommodate Woodall and Barrett, both of whom use special vehicles, and resident Louise Bufkin, who uses a cane.

Woodall and Barrett told the Council they are two of 400 people nationwide who were trained by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in the specifics of the Americans with Disabilities Act. They attended a five-day training session which qualified them to offer their services to local governments and businesses as consultants.

The two women said they also have been chosen as two of 100 people to move into the second phase of training. They will attend a seminar in St. Louis, Mo., in February.

Woodall, who works for the state, and Barrett, who is employed with Memorial Hospital at Gulfport, both offered their services free of charge to the city.

The city is in the process of purchasing the former Peoples

Hancock adds Christian club

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
A new Christian club received board permission Monday to meet at Hancock High School.

Board attorney Joseph Gex told Hancock School Board members, "The club must be treated as any other non-curriculum related club on campus."

Board members Cheryl Bennett, District 2, and Carol Busetter, District 3, expressed concern over the proposed lunch meeting time.

Bennett said, she feared students may occasionally skip lunch in favor of attending the meeting, should they find themselves pressured for time.

Gex stated, permissible meeting times must be the same for all non-curriculum clubs, and these times are to be determined by principal David Kopf.

Board members passed a resolution instructing Gex, Kopf and superintendent Myrna Bourgeois to jointly compose school policies on clubs and organizations for both high school and elementary levels.

REPAIRS

Architect John Mykolyk informed board members that plans for the replacement of two roofs at Gulfview were prepared and are ready to be sent to the state in application for Educational Finance Commission (EFC) monies.

EFC funds are loan entitlements to state public school building funds. The funds are restricted to capital building projects and are repaid by the state, not the schools.

Mykolyk also said water leakage through the office flooring has been alleviated by improved drainage. He said additional steps such as resealing of walls and floors, along with gutter installations would keep water from re-entering the offices.

BONDS

The board authorized Bourgeois to enter into contract with Trustmark National Bank

Coast artist chips career out of marble

BY TRACI BONNEY
Patrick Burke is chipping a career out of seeing things. Burke, a Gulf Coast artist, works in a medium used by few, if any, other local artists — stone.

He is a stone sculptor, and has been working in that particular medium since 1985.

He gave up a professional career in medical and health sciences in 1979 to become a full-time writer. Burke has been published academically and has had a couple of novels and a self-help book published. A screenplay he wrote currently is being considered for production by a movie company.

He started sculpting stone in Birmingham, Ala., in 1985, using marble from the quarry at Sylacauga, Ala.

"I just fell in love with it," he commented. "It's some beautiful stone, and so easy to work with."

When Burke started stone sculpting, he used electric tools, but went through the parts quickly. Eventually, he discovered pneumatic tools, which use compressed air and last longer.

He doesn't have any particular subjects that he prefers to sculpt.

"This may sound trite, but I look at the stone and see what's in it already, then sculpt that."

"Before I ever knew that famous artists had said that's what they did, that was what I was doing. I've talked to other stone

Career night set, volunteers needed

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
The third annual area College and Career Night will be Feb. 3, 5:30 to 9 p.m. at Hancock High.

The school is located on Stennis Drive off Highway 603. John Kolodziej, of Sverdrup Technology, Inc., John C. Stennis Space Center, is general chairman for this special night for our youth.

Kolodziej said, "We need volunteers in all career fields to come and make presentations to students and their parents."

"We are also asking for volunteers to act as representatives for their respective colleges, or universities, so that a broad spectrum of schools from across the country will be represented," Kolodziej added.

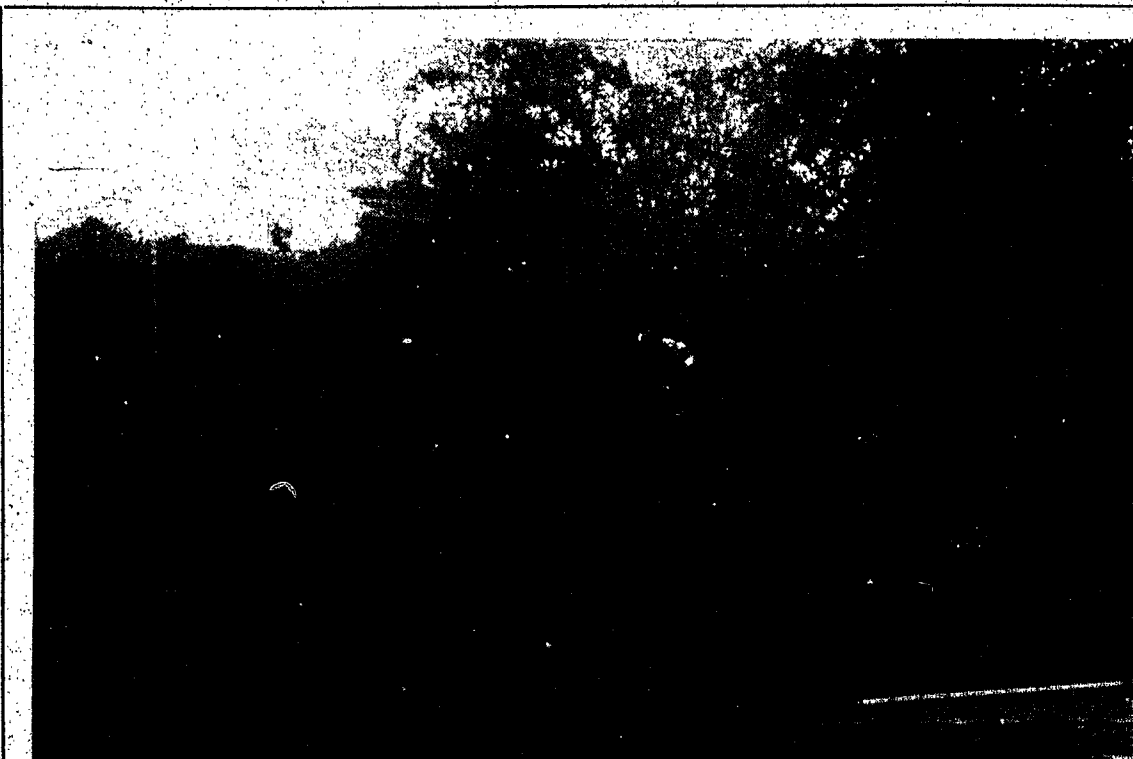

The College and Career Night is sponsored by Bay High, Coast Episcopal, Hancock High, Our Lady Academy, Pass Christian High and St. Stanislaus.

Last year some 70 volunteers assisted with the program, and it is hoped there will even be more this year, Kolodziej said.

"This is not just a program for seniors and their parents. It would be very beneficial to the younger students in helping them select the necessary high school courses to prepare for their college education," Kolodziej stated.

A number of college financial aid advisors will also be available at the career night.

Volunteers are requested to contact Kolodziej at 688-3620 work; or 255-7967.

House fire

Dense smoke was escaping from the 128 Harrison Court residence of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Lacoste on Thursday when firefighters arrived at the scene. Bay Fire Chief Andrew Lizana said there was smoke damage to the house; fire damage to a large area of the ceiling and attic. Two fire trucks and seven firefighters answered the alarm. The origin of the fire is still under investigation, Lizana stated. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Slidell evangelist David Hamilton to teach about Solomon's Temple

Evangelist David Hamilton of Slidell, La., will speak at First United Pentecostal Church, corner of Old Spanish Trail and Arnold in Waveland, December 13-20. Hamilton is a former architectural design who began an evangelistic ministry about a year ago. He takes an unusual approach to his teaching style of ministering; he uses visual aids constructed from found objects. Hamilton designed and built a miniature Solomon's Temple and a full-sized collection of Temple artifact replicas, using materials he found in flea markets, junk yards and other places.

In a recent article from Lufkin, Texas, he commented, "The Spirit of the Lord anoints my mind and I don't see the item as it is, but as it can be. I take something old and dead, and give life to it."

The Temple and artifact replicas are an integral part of his teachings on Temple history and present-day applications. Hamilton also uses a slide presentation and detailed lectures.

The public is invited to attend the week-long teaching/evangelism crusade. Services are 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. today; 7 p.m. nightly, Monday through Saturday.

sculptors, and they say they do the same thing, so I guess it's just the natural approach to the art."

Does he ever have a rock that doesn't show him a specific pattern?

"Yes, I have a couple like that right now. I had one rock that I couldn't see anything in, and it just sat there for a couple of weeks."

"One day it was raining, and the rock was sitting on the porch. I started looking at it, and—there it was. I finally saw something."

"If you'll just be patient with the rock—I know that sounds crazy, being patient with a rock—but if you'll be patient, the rock will tell you what's in it."

"I sometimes don't think of myself as an artist, because I just look at the rock, see what's in it, and remove the waste."

Although he has experimented with many different types of stone, Burke uses primarily Sylacauga marble, "Utah ice" (a form of silica), black granite and soapstone.

In addition to being profitable, stone sculpture has proven to be great therapy, Burke said.

"I've found that stone sculpture is really a form of meditation, because when you're sculpting you are focused completely on that task and you shut out everything else."

Patrick Burke with elephant and horse sculptures

Burke is showing his sculptures at Serenity Gallery on Main Street in Bay St. Louis. Although it is the first gallery to display his work, he said he hopes to place exhibits in other Coast galleries.

Ever the explorer, Burke said he plans to move into metal sculpture next. Although some of the actual techniques involved differ from those of stone sculpture, he said the process of deciding what to sculpt is much the same.

"I walk through a scrap yard, and I see things. I don't just see the piece of metal as it is, but I can see how things fit together to make an object."

Has he done more than simply walk through scrap yards to get ideas?

"Yes, I have a backyard full of materials," he commented with a wry grin.

He said he would like also to work once again in clay sculpture, the starting point for his artistic training. However, that plan is still in the future, and involves finding someone with a firing oven who would be willing to fire his sculptures.

Meanwhile, he plans to continue chipping away at his new career.

AARP needs tax volunteers

The American Association for Retired Persons (AARP) is accepting applications from volunteers interested in helping the elderly with their taxes in 1993. The AARP Tax-Aide program is co-sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service.

Each year, the IRS trains thousands of volunteer tax counselors who later spend approximately four hours per week from Feb. 1 to April 15 providing free income tax return preparation assistance to older adults in the community at such sites as libraries, churches and seniors centers.

Volunteers of all ages perform this service. AARP membership is not required. A training course for all volunteers of the Gulf Coast Area will be conducted Jan. 18-21st 1993, in room G-121 at the Jefferson Davis Campus of Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College in Gulfport.

EDITORIAL

United Way campaign very short of goal

The United Way of South Mississippi's campaign (Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties) is some $360,291 short of its goal.

In terms of percentages, this is 32.75% of the $1,100,000 expected to be raised this year.

The United Way of South Mississippi provides funds for 52 charitable and community service organizations caring for people in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties.

The United Way will only be able to support these organizations according to the availability of funds.

The campaign chairpersons and their respective counties are Don Henderson, Hancock; Ronnie Bates, Harrison; and Edith McDonald, Pearl River.

The chairpersons are helped by hundreds of volunteers, who like them, donate their time and talents to raise money to be used to help those in need of all ages.

Thousands of residents of the area receive support from the United Way through its 52 agencies.

The campaign was to end during the month of November, but had to be extended into December to try and reach its goal of $1,100,000, so the services of these agencies can continue at the same level as in the previous year.

It is not too late to give; you can make a difference. Send your contribution to: The United Way of South Mississippi, P.O. Box 1172, Gulfport, MS. 39502. For further information call, 467-9051.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Injured officer's brother issues mandate for changes

Dear Editor,
I am writing in response to the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Travis Foreman on December 6. My purpose is two-fold: to point out the real factors that contributed to Officer Foreman's survival and to learn from the situation.

During the days following the shooting, many people attributed his survival to the presence of "luck." I do not believe in luck, and therefore attribute his survival to intensive training, intelligence, and God's protection.

Deputy Foreman graduated at the top of his class of both reserve and full-time Police Academy. He also is a qualified marksman (highest ranking) in the shooting of his 45 cal. service weapon. He is one semester away from obtaining a bachelor's degree in accounting with a minor in criminal justice from the University of Southern Mississippi.

This training has provided Deputy Foreman with the knowledge to act instinctively and intelligently in life-threatening situations such as the one he faced last Sunday night.

Moreover, I believe anyone who survives a gunfire exchange of this magnitude must thank God for His presence and protection.

Finally, let's use this situation as a mandate for change. Let's see the following become mandatory guidelines for all police officers in Hancock County as well as nationwide: Use of bullet-proof vests at all times; Police Academy certification, two-man police units, and portable radios for every officer.

Deputy Foreman was alone that night, and was not equipped with a portable radio. He was not able to radio for help until he returned to his car after nearly thirty rounds of gunfire. A portable radio as well as a properly trained partner could have greatly decreased his chances of injury or death.

As Deputy Foreman's identical twin brother, I have a vested interest in the incident and its outcome. I want to thank God and I want to thank Travis for overcoming the odds and being good at what he does. His competence saved his life and my brother. His family and friends are very proud of a job well done.

Sean P. Foreman

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi
Economic Council

This partnership can work

One of Mississippi's greatest resources is its natural beauty and environment, and protecting this resource should be a priority for all Mississippians.

An equally important resource for the people of this state is jobs—jobs that put food on our tables, clothes on our backs and roofs over our heads. Many of those jobs are found in heavy industry and factories, providing materials which help people here at home and across the country enjoy a comfortable standard of living.

On Dec. 17, the legislative Environmental Protection Council will be conducting a public hearing on the state's Capacity Assurance Plan (CAP)—a plan that projects how much hazardous waste will be produced and disposed of during the next 20 years.

A part of that discussion will relate to the issue of the location of a commercial hazardous waste facility in the state. At the present time, there is no approved hazardous waste facility in Mississippi.

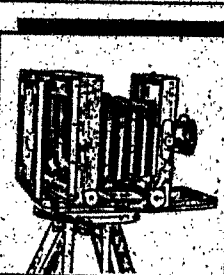

Mississippi has already had to deal with the situation of neighboring states refusing to accept our hazardous waste, a situation which no longer exists. However, this state is at a point where it must seriously consider the construction of an EPA-approved, commercial hazardous waste facility.

The fact is, Mississippi is already producing and disposing of hundreds of thousands of tons of hazardous waste each year, with the vast majority of it being treated on site. With this in mind, it is important to consider the long-term view and recognize the need for an in-state facility.

If such a facility existed, Mississippi would place itself in a strong position to strike agreements with other states for the management of hazardous waste. If such a facility existed, Mississippi would be in better position to compete for new businesses and new jobs. If such a facility existed, Mississippi would be in a position to negotiate, with strength, on future waste issues that appear before our region and our country.

The bottom line is this: The environment and industry can work together. It can be done. If the proper steps are taken, if the safeguards are there, this is a partnership that can work—for Mississippi and for her people.

Council

Federal Bank building on Court Street, which will allow the city to give people with disabilities better access to city offices and Council meetings.

However, the Resolution Trust Corporation, the federal agency handling the sale of the building, has not closed with the city on the sale yet. This means that the city has not been in compliance with the ADA.

Louise Bufkin, a local resident who has become an advocate for area people with disabilities, pointed this out at the Council's last November meeting, and asked about the status of the city's transition plan, which is required under the ADA to state what a local government is doing to come into compliance with the law.

Bufkin asked again about the transition plan. Municipal clerk Kay Johnson said the city is in the process of developing the plan with assistance from Woodall and others who have expertise in this area.

TAXI SERVICE

Mayor Eddie Favre said three taxi cab operators have applied for licenses to operate their businesses in the Bay St. Louis city limits.

He told the Council he expected to have recommendations by the December 22 meeting.

OTHER BUSINESS

The Council approved a travel request, the purchase of two signs, renewal of the city's membership in the Mississippi Heritage Trust, the claims docket, a motion to make surplus a vehicle destroyed by fire, an appraisal request for the railroad depot the city plans to purchase from CSX, and an advertisement of the city's resources in a photo map of Bay St. Louis which will include pictures of City Hall and the Court Street annex.

The Council also commended the public service department on its work in connection with the city gas system.

After an executive session to discuss negotiations with CSX on the depot, the Council recessed to December 15, when a number of term bids will be opened.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

Altrusa Club of Bay St. Louis-Waveland

Altrusa Club of Bay St. Louis-Waveland members participated in the 38 annual conference of District Four, Altrusa International in Tupelo.

Attending were Lis Lagarde, president and delegate; Mary Lee Lagarde, alternate delegate; and Hazel McCreery, member. Keynote speaker was international first vice-president Peggy Sparks of London, England, and the theme of the convention was E.A.R.T.H., Every Altrusan's Responsibility to Help.

A highlight of the convention was the presentation of the first Altrusa Environmental Award to Melissa Poe, Memphis, Tenn., who at the age of 9 wrote to President Bush about her concerns for the environment. She received a letter from an aide to Bush, but the letter spoke of drugs. She began her own club KIDS F.A.C.E. (Kids for a Clean Environment) which has now spread to many towns and states. Melissa was made an honorary member of Altrusa International Inc.

Lagarde was a member of the elections committee and took part in the parade of presidents at a luncheon. She and her mother were also introduced at the luncheon as one of four mother-and-daughter members of an Altrusa organization.

An International Altrusa convention will be in Nashville, Tenn. July 1993, and the District IV convention will be in Montgomery, Ala. October 1993.

Hancock Women's Club

Hancock Women's Club met for its Christmas luncheon and meeting on Thursday, Dec. 10 at the Galley, Waveland Resort Inn. There were 44 members and guests present.

Prospective members and guests included Harriet Reightler, Marion Kergosien; Jewel McCaleb, Mary Porter, Melba Felder, Jannie Ortis, Phyllis Maness, Amelia Killeen, Lillian Blaize and Cathleen Taconi.

President Loraine Townsend reminded members of the Christmas party planned for the 41 residents of the Bay St. Louis Residential Care Center at 2 p.m., Friday, Dec. 18 at the center.

There will be refreshments of ice cream and cup cakes, and Santa will be there to distribute a gift to each resident. Ruth Townsend, the president's mother-in-law, (herself a senior citizen) will play the piano with a selection of "golden oldies" and perhaps get everyone to sing along.

Townsend expressed sorrow over the loss of long-time member, Dolores Jackson, and asked that the group members remember her in their prayers, and also that they pray for several members and relatives who are ill at the present time.

The business meeting was abbreviated in order to allow time for raffling off several door prizes and exchange of gifts.

There is no Fun and Games Day scheduled for December. The next meeting will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 14 at the VFW Hall, Bay St. Louis.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

It's that time of year again, when we're all searching our memories and our files and those stacks of recipes and finger-smudged notes for those extra-special favorite desserts of the Christmas season!

Some of these recipes we keep for special times; and what in this world could be more special than Christmas? Others are year-round favorites at our tables, given extra embellish-ments and such for the grand finale for that feast of feasts. For, desserts are as much a part of the holiday as Christmas trees and presents, aren't they?

Fruitcakes are, of course, traditional in many homes; and pecan pies and cheese pies are special favorites on Southern tables, as are rich, chocolate desserts of all sorts.

As chocolate is the favorite dessert in so many homes, why not prepare one or even two easy yet elegant chocolate finales to the festive meal? One of our family's all-time favorites is fudge pie, richer than rich.

The recipe comes from the cook-book, "River Road Recipes" by the Junior League of Baton Rouge, La. Here's:

FUDGE PIE

2 squares bitter chocolate
1 stick butter or margarine
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup sifted flour

Melt the chocolate and butter in a double boiler. Mix the flour and sugar; beat the eggs and combine with the flour and sugar. Add chocolate and butter mixture. Put into well-greased 9-inch pie tin, and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes.

If you wish, add a scoop of chocolate ice cream or whipped cream when you serve. Cut into segments just as you would a pie. We sometimes top the slices with ice cream, then with hot fudge sauce, sinfully rich and ever so delicious!

Do we ever outgrow our love of chocolate? Not I!

CONSUMER UPDATE

Check out charities before giving

By Janet K. Lukens
Area consumer money management specialist

Charitable giving during the holidays brightens faces and warms hearts, but take a look at a charity before digging into your pocketbook.

Better Business Bureau is reporting increased consumer calls regarding charity solicitations. By checking out charities before donating, more money goes to charitable programs and less to administration or outright scams.

Local Better Business Bureau staff recommend donating to charities with which you are familiar. Stay clear of unfamiliar charities which pick up the money at your door but offer no written information about their services and give no receipts.

Even when a charity sounds familiar, care must be taken that the name is not simply very close to that of a legitimate charity. For example, the Cancer Fund of America has a similar name to the American Cancer Society.

The latter organization is the well-known charitable cancer research group while the former is not recommended by the Better Business Bureau.

To determine if there have been consumer problems and complaints against the organization you are considering, all the Better Business Bureau in Jackson at (601) 956-8282. This office can also supply detailed financial information on most local charities as well.

Ask for a receipt from charities as documentation for tax purposes and as a safety measure. Legitimate charitable organizations readily supply written documentation for the consumers records.

Many donors have become much more skeptical after last February's United Way controversy over its president's high salary.

The Council of Better Business Bureaus compiles an "Annual Charity Index" which this year also includes the CEO salary for each organization.

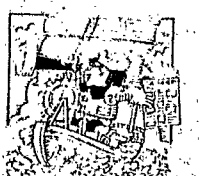

The guide gives information on 203 charities which are most often asked about by consumer callers. The guide gives the organization's 1991 income and the amount spent on charitable programs. To order, send $12.95 to the Council of Better Business Bureaus, 2200 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22208.

Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

- STICK TO THE FACTS
Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, its size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.
- BE HONEST
Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyer's trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.
- SPELL IT OUT
Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?
- THE BOTTOM LINE
State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.
- BE THERE
Let the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't let a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.
- ASK US
If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!

St. Stanislaus shocks Long Beach

The St. Stanislaus soccer team won an important district game Thursday night when they defeated Long Beach 8-7 in a sudden-death shootout. SSC started the scoring with er's hands, and was finished off by Konstantine Koloskov.

Long Beach then came back with two goals, to make the score 2-1 at intermission.

The Rock-A-Chaws came back in the second half, with Charles Oliver making a diving header crossed by Beau Schindler.

Regulation time ran out with the score 2-2. In the two-minute overtime periods SSC took the early lead, 3-2, when Oliver was fouled in the box and Koloskov made the penalty kick.

The lead was short-lived, however, as Long Beach received and made a penalty kick to tie the score 3-3. The overtime periods ended, forcing a shootout.

Schindler made a shot and Long Beach countered, making the score 4-4. Oliver made a shot, but Long Beach matched it. Koloskov and Neil Heitzman followed, but the Bearcats made only one of their next two.

Brian Gagnon's shot would have ended the game, but it was stopped and the Bearcats made theirs to tie the score at 7-7.

The next shootout was a sudden death, with the first team that scored first winning. The Rocks and 'Cats both missed their first shot, but Brad Cannon made one that went unanswered to finish the game.

SSC is now 9-2 overall, 4-0 in district.

The junior varsity Rocks won their fifth consecutive game with a 4-3 win over Long Beach. Eduardo Jimenez, Kirk Edrington and Casey Swanson scored the Rocks' goals (Jimenez scored two; Edrington and Swanson scored one each).

Coach Tim Burns commented, "This was the closest game for the junior varsity, who still show improvement and a will to make things happen."

Their record is 5-0 overall and 3-0 in district.

A special halftime show was performed by the SSC fans, led by Peter Martinez, Peter Ritten and Sonny Schindler. A pep band led by August Goulet on "rocks" and Abe Kinney on "drums" also helped SSC on the win, said Coach Burns.

The final help was produced, he added, by the students of OLA and St. Stanislaus, who kept the team going the whole game.

"Without these groups, it would have been just another game," Burns concluded.

scored by Whavers (two), Collins and Jackson (one each).

Collins had seven assists and seven steals; Ricks had three steals and 14 rebounds; and Jackson had 10 rebounds.

Coach Mark Collins commented, "The team shot only 28 percent for the field, and still were down only 2 points after the first period. The team at times played good defense."

Problems women have with hysterectomies.

1. Pain
2. Scarring
3. Blood loss
4. Missing work

New "Micro-Incision Surgery" may reduce these problems.

The Laser and Advanced Surgical Procedures Center now offers a modern micro-incision surgical procedure that can reduce the problems associated with a hysterectomy. This procedure is called Laparoscopic Assisted Hysterectomy.

Unlike conventional abdominal hysterectomies using a scalpel, there's no major incision through stomach muscles. Instead, advanced surgical techniques and equipment are used -- including laparoscopes -- making gynecological surgery less problematic.

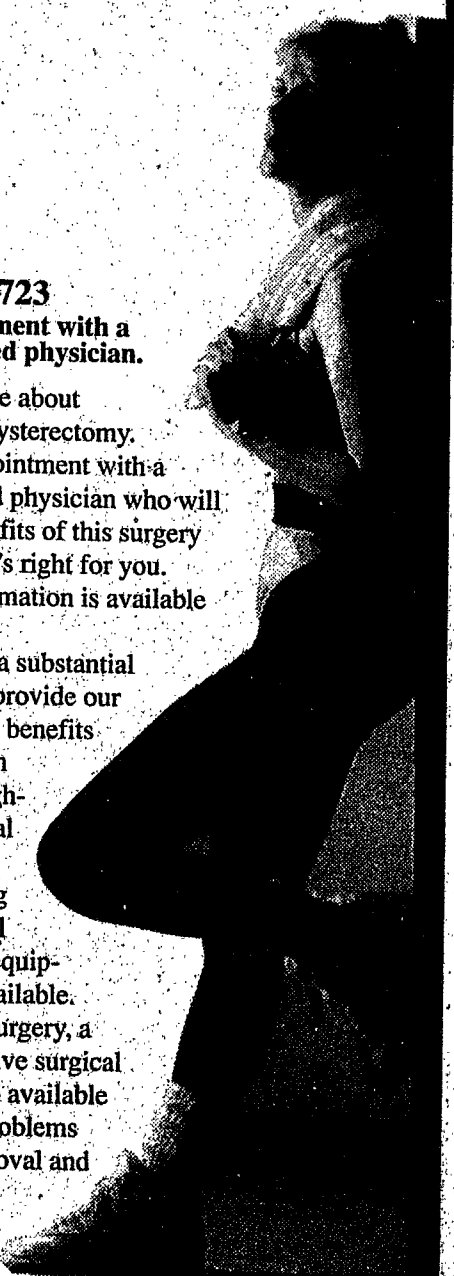

With micro-incision surgery, a minimally-invasive surgical technique, the incisions are much smaller, so tissue damage is reduced. You are likely to experience less pain and better cosmetic results than with traditional surgery. The chance of complications or infection is reduced. And recovery is much faster, meaning fewer days in the hospital and a faster return to a normal routine.

Our surgeons have undergone special training utilizing the advanced instrumentation that makes this procedure possible. So before undergoing surgery, explore the benefits available with this technique.

 for an appointment with a specially-trained physician.

Find out more about Laparoscopic Hysterectomy. Call for an appointment with a specially-trained physician who will explain the benefits of this surgery and tell you if it's right for you. Additional information is available upon request.

We've made a substantial commitment to provide our patients with the benefits of micro-incision surgery. Our highly-skilled surgical team undergoes on-going training as newer surgical procedures and equipment become available. Micro-incision surgery, a minimally-invasive surgical technique, is also available for abdominal problems (gallbladder removal and appendectomy).

A DIFFERENT VIEW

Exploring new worlds

By Traci Bonney

No, the Lemon Patrol didn't abduct me, for those who may have had a passing thought of that sort.

If you will recall, my last column—way back in September—dealt with the formation of a Lemon Patrol to rid Hancock County of those afflicted with humorous interruptus by curing or rehabilitating them. The victims who could not be cured would be sent to comedy camps such as the Comedy Zone in Biloxi for intensive treatment.

So, no, I haven't been visiting a comedy camp, or anything of that sort. I've been exploring a new world, Le Monde Lyceene, since mid-October.

For those who don't speak French, Le Monde Lyceene is "High School World."

High School World makes the Twilight Zone look tame in some respects.

I'm exploring this world as one of those most intrepid—some would say insane—of travelers: a Teacher. I happen to be the French variety of Teacher, and I'm exploring the Coast Episcopal sector of High School World.

For those who might be curious about this mysterious frontier, let me mention a few of my observations so far.

Residents of High School World, for the most part, seem eager to leave their planet.

Most realize they must do this on a ship called Graduation, although some seem to want to either disappear (also called "dropping out," I suppose they don't realize how difficult it is to fall off a planet) or take another ship called Failure.

From what I hear, the ship Graduation is a much nicer vessel than the Failure, but the Failure departs High School World more often. The Graduation leaves the planet only once a year, while the Failure leaves periodically during the year.

Of course, the Graduation tends to land on College World or Career World, while the Failure often lands on Welfare World. The problem is, the passengers of the Failure have no idea where they may end up, while the Graduation's passengers often have a number of choices.

However, those determined to ride the Failure usually cannot be dissuaded from boarding the ship, unfortunately.

Another thing I have found is that the denizens of High School World have a number of subcultures within the framework of their main culture, and that these subcultures tend to change from year to year. A former High School World resident, upon returning to the planet, may find that the culture has changed radically in the intervening time.

For instance, if you leave High School World on the Graduation, go to College World then move on to Career World (this seems to be the normal migration pattern), then come back to High School World 10 years or so later, you will find that the methods of celebration have changed.

Of course, High School World has a cultural information disseminator that can keep former residents abreast of changes, if they desire. This agent is named MTV.

MTV collects and broadcasts information about the legislators and trends of High School World. He is quite good at his job, and gives out all the latest information. A number of years ago, he even managed to get access to a channel on the cable systems of Adult World, to better broadcast his findings.

While the residents of High School World will allow the Teacher-explorers to do their jobs, the High Schoolers generally do not make any extravagant efforts to help the explorers in their tasks. There are always a few exceptions; the High Schoolers have labeled these people "Teacher's Pets." I'm not quite sure why; I certainly haven't attempted to domesticate any of them.

Although High Schoolers can be quite hyperactive at times, and occasionally do exhibit aggressive or violent tendencies (although I have had no such personal experience to date, I am pleased to say), for the most part they are agreeable people who (although most wouldn't admit it) enjoy their interactions with the Teacher-explorers.

In three weeks I will be leaving Echoland entirely to explore the Coast Episcopal sector of High School World full time. I now want to bid my faithful readers (and even those of you who tuned in only occasionally) au revoir, and invite you to visit your local sector of High School World sometime. After all, you ought to go visit your precious Tax Dollars once in a while, don't you think?

Besides, maybe it will give you a greater understanding of those enigmatic creatures, the High Schoolers, when they visit your world each evening and on weekends.

Even if it doesn't, it may prove entertaining.

Patty Steele honored

The Family Child Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse held its third annual Volunteer Appreciation Banquet recently at the Biloxi Beach Resort Motor Inn.

The annual banquet gives the staff at the Family Child Center a chance to let the parent-aide volunteers know just how valuable they are to the center and to the at-risk families they work with.

A 'Volunteer of the Year' was chosen from each of the coastal counties. They are Rachel Laubmeier, Harrison County, who has for several years worked with many families and successfully reduced the risk of abuse; Patty Steele, Hancock County, has had great success with her at-risk families; and Rosemary Crawley, Jackson County, has done an excellent job with her cases.
